The following from here attended the ball game at Ezel Saturday: Mrs. James Franklin, Mrs. Henry Cole, Mrs. Mattie Salyers, Misses Emma Spurlock and Lenora Reid. Messrs: Curtis Mathis, T. H. Caskey, Everett Mathis, Boyd Brown, Henry Carter, Henry Cole, Edgar Cochran, Carl Whitt, Coiza Helton, Will Wells, A. Young Hovemeier and Ollie Moore.

Mrs. R. M. Oakley left Saturday for Louisville to consult a specialist in regard to her teeth. She has just returned from Dry Ridge Springs where she had been for rheumatism, but some of her teeth were troubling her and she went to Louisville on that account. She will be met at Louisville by her son, Dr. W. J. Oakley, of Bardstown, and will visit him a few days before returning.

W. M. Kendall Dies. W. M. Kendall, aged 74, died at the Nickell hospital early Tuesday morning of infirmities incident to old age. Mr. Kendall was a very prominent citizen and had done much for the community. He was progressive and public spirited and did much to improve his home town. He was a member of the Methodist church and a Mason. At one time he owned property but within a few years of his death he disposed of it to his relatives. He promoted the first telephone to the county.

He is survived by one son, four years old, three sisters, Mrs. A. B. Nickell, Ezel; Mrs. Mary B. Rose, Sandy Hook; Mrs. S. W. Cecil, Wilmore; two brothers, John A. Kendall, Umatilla, Fla. and W. C. Kendall, McAllister, Okla. Mrs. Nickell and Mrs. Rose and W. C. Kendall were here at the burial.

He was buried at the Salyers-Wood lawn cemetery Wednesday with Masonic honors.

The Chataqua. The Radcliffe Chataqua will be at West Liberty June 11, 13 and 14. This year promises one of the best programs we have had and everybody should prepare to attend. Season tickets are only two dollars and save $1.00 over the buying of single admission tickets. Get your season ticket at once.

Inspecting Universities. Judge D. W. Gardner, of Salyersville, was one of the twenty-six selected by the Board of Trustees of the State University to visit Universities at Columbus, Ohio, Lafayette, Ind., Madison, Wis., and Urbana, Ill., to learn what features of these Universities can be adapted to our own State University. The trip was made from the 17th to the 21st.

Lowering the Time. Dr. H. V. Nickell made the trip from the end of the Index road to West Liberty in a Ford in 7 minutes Sunday. Doubtless someone will try to lower that record, but they should not. Ten minutes is plenty low to make the trip and is about 50 minutes better than it was on the old road, which should satisfy anyone.

Base Ball. The West Liberty ball team went to Ezel Saturday for a game with the team at that place and lost by a score of 9 to 4. Two or three of the regular team was unable to go and substitutes had to be found and the team did not do its usual good work, and the Ezel team was a good one, besides. The Ezel team will be here Saturday and our boys hope to have a different story of that game.

Marshal's Sale for Taxes. By virtue of the taxes due the Graded School District No. 1, of West Liberty, Ky., for the school year of 1918-1919, amounting to $32.24 and the cost, I will on MONDAY JUNE 13, 1921, sell at public outcry at the door of the court house in West Liberty, the house and lot in West Liberty on Main street known as the W. H. Wheeler property. Said taxes being the taxes due on said property while owned by said W. H. Wheeler.

At the same time and place I will also sell the same property for the taxes due the town of West Liberty, for the year 1919, amounting to $20.03 and cost. Total $50.40.

J. M. COTLE, Collector of School Tax and Marshal of the Town of West Liberty.

County Examination. The first examination for the year for county certificates to teach was held here last Friday and Saturday, and thirty-three applicants. Examination was pronounced difficult, most of those who tried it and from the question we saw evidently based upon the school requirements. The examinations are now based upon the requirements of the high school course should be an indication of the county to give their boys and girls a thorough high school course and send them to the Morgan County High School.

The County Superintendent said that the applicants on this examination worked hard and made no effort to cheat and that the board of education would give the teachers who were examined at home the preference in the schools. He strongly disavows the idea of Morgan county teachers who intend to teach in the county going to other counties to be examined.

Those who took the examination here last week were: Ira Skaggs, Martha Craft, Lydia McClure, Hazel Mullins, K. C. Murphy, H. H. Holliday, Jane Vance, Garland Frisby, Nora Howard, J. F. Cantrell, Della Patton, Rollie Cox, Lonnie Coffee, Wm. Skaggs, Archie Lacy, Elsie Lacy, Jennie O Perkins, Edna Ward Briscoe, Phoebe Gillum, Hord Williams, Monte Frisby, Robert Cantrell, Lanta Lewis, Elizabeth May, Wilda Walsh, Grace May, Eva Halsey, Mrs. W. A. Bishop, Mary S. Davis, Bertha Roseberry, Mrs. Lula D. Murphy and S. Lee Rose.

A Newspaper Campaign. W. C. Black, of Blaze, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Justice of the Peace from the Third district, was in town Saturday on his way home from Hazard, and stopped in to see the Courier crew. He said that he had a job at Hazard that would keep him for a while, and that he wanted to do some campaigning thru the columns of the Courier. He authorized us to say for him that if he was elected to the office he seeks he would stand for strict enforcement of the law, and that he would advocate a progressive policy for the development of the county. He wants it understood that he advocates economy in the county affairs. Not stinginess, but whatever work is done for the county to be done at a rate of pay that is just and free from favoritism. He wants the county to get 100 cents worth of whatever they pay a dollar for, and he will oppose claims that have no merit or worth. But he favors improvement and road building and will advocate the building of roads at the lowest possible cost that good work can be had.

Index Road Opened. The West Liberty-Index road was thrown open to the travel Thursday and the people are just beginning to realize what a great advantage it is to them. This road crosses one of the most difficult mountains in the county and is nearly three miles long, yet Floyd Arnett and some friends made the trip from here to Index in his Baby Grand Chevrolet in nine minutes, or at the rate of 20 miles an hour. Of course this is not a speed record, but it shows that a mountain, when crossed by a proper graded road, is easy to make and offers little difficulty.

This is one of the best pieces of road engineering that we have ever seen, nowhere approaching an 8 per cent grade, and it will be a boon to our citizens.

Mr. F. H. Yancey, the construction engineer, has taken a personal pride in the building of the road and it is a credit to him in its completion.

Aged Citizen Dies. Menefee Turner, aged 76, died at his home on Broadway Thursday of infirmities incident to old age. Mr. Turner was one of the county's best citizens and respected by all who knew him. He had been engaged in the undertaking business for years here and was known as a progressive, honest business man.

He is survived by his wife, four sons and one daughter. The sons are C. B. Chas. A., of this town, Clarence and Clay, of Illinois, and the daughter, Mrs. Minnie Smith, of Roanoke, Va. Mrs. Smith came but arrived after the burial. The interment was in the Kendall cemetery on Friday.

Chief Justice White Dead. Edward Douglas White, Chief Justice of the United States, died May 18, at a hospital in Washington following an operation. He was 70 years old and a native of Louisiana. He served in the Confederate army and in the U. S. Senate three years prior to being appointed to the Supreme Court by President Grover Cleveland in 1894, and was elevated to Chief Justice in 1910 by President Taft. Chief Justice was a life-long Democrat.

Take it from me, young fellow: "Don't go to the devil before you are dead."

FAST MAIL SERVICE.

The appended letter will give some idea of the service we are getting in the postoffices of Eastern Kentucky. Portsmouth, Ky., is in Breathitt county, a few miles from Jackson:

"Portsmouth, Ky., May 16, 1921.

Editor L. V. Courier,
West Liberty, KY.

Dear Editor:

I am writing you to let you know just how fast our mail travels today, and then think how slow is was in George Washington's time. I used to take the Licking Valley Courier but had so much trouble in getting it that I had it stopped. But today I got a copy of it in fine shape that had been on the road since August 7, 1919. You see it don't take long to get a paper by mail when it don't have to come more than 35 miles. It is not like living in George Washington's time when it required a week for a letter to go from New York to Philadelphia. I am sending you the paper so that you can see for yourself when it was published.

I am glad that our mail system is so good and that it is not worse, so hoping that this letter will reach you in your natural lifetime, I beg to remain,

Yours truly,
ALBERT WILLIAMS."

PULLING AN OLD ONE.

Harry Kipping puts an old one over on his local paper, the Carrollton Democrat, and the editor of the "From Mills Point to the Big Sandy" column in the Louisville Times gives it wider circulation by reproducing it. This is the item:

"Owing to my ill health I will sell at my residence one plush raspberry cow aged 8 years. She is of undoubted courage and gives milk frequently. To the man who does not fear death in any form she would be a great boon. She is very much attached to her present abode with a stay chain, but she will be sold to anyone who agrees to treat her right. She is one-fourth Short-horn and three-fourths cow. Her name is Rose. Present owner will throw in a double-barrel shotgun, which goes with her. He prefers to sell her to a nonresident, the farther away the better."

The Point is that the late Bill Nye, one of America's greatest humorists, wrote this cow advertisement in the beginning of his career and it has gone the rounds of the press time after time, and Mr. Kipping gets by with it as original both in the Carrollton Democrat and the Louisville Times. The last half of the last sentence is new.

THE CHAUTAUGUA EDITION.

On June 9th the Courier will issue a Chautauqua Edition, and will print several hundred extra copies. Advertisers are requested to get their copy in not later than June 6th. Candidates who expect to use space for special write-ups will favor us by getting their copy for same in even earlier than that so that we will know how many pages we will have to print.

FOR JUSTICE OF THE PEACE.

In this issue will be found the announcement of Raney Hamilton, of Silver Hill, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Justice of the Peace from District No. 4.

Mr. Hamilton is a man of splendid character, well qualified and in favor of law enforcement. He has been a teacher in this county for fourteen years and is a successful business man, and if elected will make a useful member of the Fiscal Court. He is courageous and will not be afraid to do his duty. He would favor good roads and the betterment of the county, and be careful in the expenditure of the public money.

The Courier bespeaks for his candidacy the careful consideration of the Democrats of the district.

a muscle, or averting the steady gaze of his eyes. Suddenly he rose to his knees, a revolver gripped in either hand.

"There's Laud now," he announced simply.

She saw the fellow also, lifting her head to peer over the low rim of rock, standing in the open trail, but just beyond range. He held a rifle in his hands, which he swung above his head, at the same time giving utterance to a hoarse shout. It must have been a signal, for instantly those rocks were black with half-naked figures, leaping madly forward, with rifles flung in air, and giving utterance to fierce yells. It was a wild race, but the steep ascent to the cave halted them. The two above, reckless now of exposure, fired as swiftly as they could press trigger, straight into the red faces. Some fell, shot down in their tracks, a few paused to reply, but the majority began to clamber up. Laud ran forward to join them, routing out his orders. He was in full view against the snow-covered trail, and Shelby swung his smoking muzzle down upon him. To the crack the fellow flung up both hands, writhed about, and crumpled into a shapeless heap. Shelby, scarcely realizing the success of his quick shot, staggered back, reversed the gun in his hand, and struck with the butt at the first Indian appearing above the platform. It was hand to hand.

CHAPTER XV.

A Squadron of the Sixth.

Pancho vanished into the fog, wading along the creek, and finally creeping out below the burned cabin. If there were any guards left there they were not encountered, and the mist hung so thick at that early hour she took few precautions to avoid them. Her one thought was Macklin; love had conquered hate, and the desire for revenge. There was a chance of success for her mission. The debris had not been searched over; it could not have been, for the fire still smoldered, but the moment the Indians were able to overhand the wreck they would discover that their victims had, in some way, escaped. There would be no charred bones, no sliced flesh, to tell of dead bodies consumed in the flames; they would not even find Macklin's remains. And Laud was no fool. The truth, in some form, would come to him at once; he would know they had got safely away; nor would he ever stop until he again found them. And he would suspect her; perhaps had seen her face when she fired that fatal shot. Her only chance lay now, before this revelation came. She was cool, resourceful; had shrewdly thought out every step. If she was still unsuspected, no one would stop her. She had always been free to leave the valley. Often she had taken early rides, and none of the ordinary guards would consider her going forth as at all strange. Of course, the Hole was filled now with strange fugitives—Indians hiding from the soldiers, suspicious of every white face. These might cause trouble, but she must take that chance. There was but one way to save Macklin's life—the doctor at Gerlasche. Shelby had told her so, and nothing else remained fixed in her mind. Mother of God, she would save him!

There were three horses in the little stable shack back of the cabin. She crept cautiously up through the fog, unable to see in the gloom, but locating the animals by touch. One was still moist from riding. Laud's pony, no doubt. The next was her own, having scarcely stamina for such a trip, but the third was the bay Juan had always been so proud of. She led the animal out, saddled and bridled him in the darkness, and then, mounting in the gray dawn, with a prayer in her heart for help and guidance, she rode slowly out into the trail. A fire burned in front of the little house beside the falls, a mere flicker of half-burned logs, with two men hovering over it. One of them started up, at sound of the horse's hoofs and gripped a rifle. He was white, a flapping hat brim shadowing his face; the other, an Indian, wrapped in a blanket, merely lifted his head, and stared moodily. Her hand gave a sharp bound, but she reined up carelessly, as the fellow stepped into the trail. He peered curiously into her face.

"Hi—! young woman, you're out d—d early, ain't you? What's up?"

There was nothing vicious in his greeting, and her heart quit its pounding.

"I'm after a doctor, Sam," she said swiftly, believing boldness the best card to play. "My brother has been shot."

"Sure, I heard that, only they told me he was dead; he ain't, hey? Had a rumput with Injun Joe, didn't he?"

"Yes; I just heard about it. He must have the doctor right away."

"Where the h—! you aim to find one?"

"Over at Gerlasche. There is an army surgeon there."

"Sure, but I'm bettin' the cuss won't come, 'less he brings the whole army 'long with him. He'd have 'ter money in yere blindfold if he did."

"Just the same he'll come, if I find heem," she said grimly, "for I'll bring heem, dead or alive. Who's out there on the trail?"

"Red Haines, an' Stumpy, 'long with a couple of Sioux. The boys are a bit jumpy just now with all them soldiers scoutin' the Bad Lands. Maybe they'll try ter stop yer, but yer tell 'em I said it was all right. Say, what was goin' on last night—shootin', ter beat h—! up the canyon, an' there was quite a fire, too?"

"Row over the girl Macklin brought in," she explained calmly, "an' the old cabin got burned."

"Some more o' Injun Joe's cussedness, I reckon?"

"Yes, he was in it; well, Adios Sam."

She rode forward, never even venturing to glance back. Thus far everything had gone easier than she could have hoped. There were no orders out against her, and these night guards were not even aware of what had taken place. She guided her horse under the veil of falling water, and up the steep bank beyond, out into the valley of the Cottonwood. There was little danger of meeting anyone now, she needed to avoid, and once beyond those watchers at the head of the trail, the way would be open. She came upon these just below the crest, grouped for shelter under the ledge of an outcropping rock. Haines had been drinking and was in a good humor, listening to her story with a broad grin, and dismissing her willingly enough.

"To h—! o' course yer kin go," he said thickly. "Yer brother pulled me out o' the Soweston once. He's a d—n good scout of a Mex. Go to it, girl; you know the trail?"

"Yes, along the edge of the Bad Lands."

"Sure; better keep in the first gully, er yer might run into a sojer out at. They're thicker than fleas out there now; they tell me. So long, sister."

It had begun to snow, big, heavy flakes, drifting with the wind, quickly whitening the landscape. The slight marks of the trail were almost instantly obliterated, but the low range of hills ahead were a sufficient landmark, and she forced her horse into a swift pace, riding with her head lowered, but with watchful eyes peering through the snow curtain.

She was alone now; free, with nothing intervening between her and Ger-lasche. Her heart bounded with the elixir of success—she would bring back the doctor to Macklin. She felt no doubt any more.

The direct trail circled just within the outer range of the sand hills, making it impossible for her to mistake the way even in that maze of snow. She rode more carelessly now that she was safely out of sight, and free from any possibility of pursuit. The horse, with lowered head, seemed to feel the urgency, and plunged forward eagerly. Suddenly as they swept around a sharp corner, seeing and hearing nothing to warn of any other presence in that solitude, they came at full tilt against a halted column of cavalry. Before Pancho could even jerk up her reins, a startled trooper had gripped the bit, and held her mount helplessly pawing the air. "Well, what's this?" he growled, tugging at the frightened animal, and dragged half off his feet in the fierce struggle. "A Mex! Say, fellows, this looks like Arizona. Lay hold here. Mapes! Call the sergeant, somebody! I've got this bird! when there! now, what's all this about, young lady?"

"What is it Summers?" the sergeant, pushing through the ring of men, peered curiously up at her from under the brim of a battered campaign hat.

"She just come tearing in, sergeant, like she was goin' somewhere. She was sure ridin' like h—! an she is Mex, all right."

"So I see. Well, senorita, what are you doing out here?"

His face was kindly, if stern.

"Senor, I ride for a doctor," she said earnestly. "Please do not stop me—a man is dying."

"A man? Where? Is he a Mex? can't?"

"No, senor, an American; he was shot; he veru bad; if I find no doctor, he die maybe."

"But where were you going?"

"To Gerlasche, senor, there is army doctor there."

"Not now there ain't; he's back here with us somewhere. Where is this fellow who's hurt?"

She hesitated just an instant, yet there was no avoiding the truth. If the doctor was here among these soldiers, she would have to tell the truth or else desert Macklin to his fate. Besides, what did she care? Her hatred of Laud suddenly flared into new life. Here was the opportunity for revenge, as well as service.

"In Wolves' hole, senor."

"Wolves' hole! Good God! did you come from there? Pass the word for the major, some one. What's that? Oh, excuse me, sir, and he came stiffly to attention, facing the heavy-set, middle-aged officer, with iron-gray mustache and goatee.

"What have you here, sergeant?" the latter asked briefly, "Mexican woman?"

"Yes, sir; she just ran into us at full tilt. She claims to be after a doctor to attend to a wounded American over in Wolves' hole."

"Is that so? Perhaps this is good luck. Who is this American, senorita—some d—n white renegade?"

"He man I love, senor."

"Oh, that's it. Then perhaps we can do business. We've got a surgeon here with us. If you will show us a way to get into Wolves' hole, I'll promise he'll take care of your man, all right."

"You ask me to guide you?"

"That's the bargain. We have been trying to locate the place for two days. Who is the leader of those outlaws?"

"Indian Joe Laud, senor."

"I've heard of the brute. Judging from the way you looked then, he is no friend of yours."

"No, senor; I hate heem; he keel my brother; now he try to keel this man I tell you 'bout—he an' two more Americans."

"Two more! This is becoming interesting, Sergeant. Let's have the straight story, senorita. You want us to help these people—is that it?"

"Si, senor; it is nothing to me what you do. I care for them not at all; they not my people any more. There are many—Indians a lot; they hide there."

"But, who are these Americans? They belong to the gang?"

"No, senor. One was a woman, senor; young, pretty woman; she captured and brought there. Bet was her husband that try to save her. He follow an' get in some way, like the Mother of God help. Hees name was Shelby."

"Shelby?" broke in the sergeant, forgetful of the officer's presence in his surprise. "What Shelby? Was his other name Tom?"

"Si, senor," and she turned her eyes on him. "You know this Tom Shelby?"

"Do I? of course I do. You remember him, Major Hays. He was with a squad in '97. Twenty-three later

THE FARM AGENT.
The United States Government and State Government are doing all that is humanly possible to aid the farmer in the business of farming. The Department of Agriculture spends millions in combatting pests that destroy the crops, in discovering means for increasing the productivity of the soil, and, what is more important, in preventing the destruction of the soil. The older countries of Europe have progressed much further in intensive cultivation than America because the necessities of a more dense population demanded it.

This country, however, is rapidly approaching that point when conservation of the soil is necessary for the preservation of the nation, and hence the efforts of the Government to aid the farmers in reaching ideal conditions in the work of farming. It is sometimes said that farming is a business, and it is. But it is even more than that. It is science. And to be successful in farming there will have to be more scientific methods used. The time is forever gone when the soil robber can prosper. There is no more new land to clean up and destroy and abandon. The farmer's task now is to increase the productivity of the soil and to reclaim that which has been destroyed.

all if the farmers will co-operate with the farm agent.

The farm agent can help the farmer in deciding about the kind of fertilizers to use, the adaptability of certain crops to a given soil, and can help the farmer along the lines in which the Government has been making scientific research. He can help in selecting the best breeds of live stock for this section, and in many ways assist the farmer if the farmer will co-operate with him. One trouble heretofore has been that many farmers what he terms an attempt to teach him to farm. The object of the farm agent is not to teach the farmer to farm, but to help him to farm more profitably. It is the farmer who is willing to admit that he does not know it all that benefits by the assistance of the farm agent. It is the farmer who is willing to profit by the experience of others that gets the real benefit of the Government researches.

The Courier is sincerely interested in the welfare of our farmers of Morgan county, and it hopes that there will be a more hearty co-operation between the farmers and the county agent. The county farm agent is here at the instance of the national government to give to the farmers the benefit of the vast research that the department of agriculture has been making for years, and what he brings them is not his ideas but the result of the information that has been collected by the department for the benefit of the farmers.

The things that must be avoided is the expecting too much at the beginning. Improvement either in the methods of farming or the reclaiming of soil must necessarily be gradual. Growth rather than revolution is the idea. The seeds sown now will bear fruit years from now, and will be of much more service than that now from the fact that the success of new methods require time to be endorsed and put in practice. It is not expected that the farmers will attempt everything that the department has found out for them. A few of the most important things should be tried first and a beginning made toward the scientific methods of farming—the things that the most readily adaptable to our soil and climate.

The Courier prints this because it realizes that unless the farmers feel an interest in the work the department is doing for them it will benefit them very little. The farm agent, Mr. Rankin, is a young man and some of the older farmers may feel that it is beneath their dignity to learn from him. But as I remarked earlier in this article, Mr. Rankin is not here to teach the farmers how to farm, but to bring to them from the Government some of the things the department has discovered that will benefit them. He has taken a scientific course in soil and soil production and many other things that the farmer can not possibly do for himself. He appears to be a gentlemanly young man and is energetic and earnest in his work, and if the farmers will work with him he will be of untold benefit to them.

Because it is very interested and concerned in the success of the farmers of Morgan county the Courier will give considerable space in its columns to the work of the county agent and the farmers in their efforts to better farming conditions and do all in its power to help them. And it will work in perfect harmony with the farmers and the county agent for better farming. And it trusts that there will develop a greater interest in the work than has been manifested in the past. If any farmer has tried a plan that will help his neighbors it will be a good thing to pass it along, and the Courier invites them to use the columns of the paper for that purpose.

Patience is an attractive, beautiful and desirable grace—in other people.

CARDUI HELPED REGAIN STRENGTH

Alabama Lady Was Sick For Three Years, Suffering Pain, Nervous and Depressed—Read Her Own Story of Recovery.

Paint Rock, Ala.—Mrs. C. M. Stegan, of near here, recently related the following interesting account of her recovery: "I was in a weakened condition. I was sick three years in bed, suffering a great deal of pain, weak, nervous, depressed. I was so weak, I couldn't walk across the floor; just had to lay and my little ones do the work. I was almost dead. I tried everything I heard of, and a number of doctors. Still I didn't get any relief. I couldn't eat, and slept poorly. I believe if I hadn't heard of and taken Cardui I would have died. I bought six bottles, after a neighbor told me what it did for her.

"I began to eat and sleep, began to gain my strength and am now well and strong. I haven't had any trouble since. . . I sure can testify to the good that Cardui did me. I don't think there is a better tonic made and I believe it saved my life."

For over 40 years, thousands of women have used Cardui successfully, in the treatment of many womanly ailments.

If you suffer as these women did, take Cardui. It may help you, too. At all druggists. E 35

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Catarrh being greatly increased by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative power of Hall's Catarrh Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by all Druggists, etc.

Here's a mower you can depend upon to go through your heaviest hay, and do a clean job of cutting. It does the kind of work you are proud of And you can keep it in good cutting order for years to come.

JOHN DEERE DAIN MOWER

By simple nut adjustments that can be made in the field with an ordinary wrench, all the lag in the cutter can be taken out and the knife can be re-centered.

We are positive that the John Deere Dain transmits more power to the knife than any other mower built. The simple arrangement of the gears prevents end thrust and side wear on the bearing and gears, which means a minimum loss of power.

The John Deere Dain is mighty well built. The bearings are large. Extra strength is provided where the strain comes. Every machine is thoroughly inspected and tested before you get it. You take no chances of getting a poor machine.

There are a number of other good features on the John Deere Dain that we want to show you. We have a machine set up ready for your inspection.

Come in and look over our full line of harvesting tools.

Smith, of Mina and Elder Jerry Skaggs, of Terryville, were elected Moderator and secretary of the presbytery.

The presbytery after examining the letters and credentials of the members who had signified their intention of becoming a member of the new church by signing the constitution pronounced all to be worthy, and the organization proper.

The new organization was then styled the Pine Grove church. The new church then proceeded to organize for one year by elected Elder Wm. Skaggs Moderator, Wyley Hill and Martin Ison, deacons and Leander Skaggs, clerk.
